

Expiration pressures IPOX® as 14% of IPOX® 100 U.S. is set to report this week. //

ACWA Power (ACWA AB) propels IPOX® MENA to positive week. //

IPOX® REVIEW: Most IPOX® Indexes slumped during U.S. options expiration week and ahead of earnings, as continued inflation anxiety on more hawkish FED talk drove interest rates (IPOXTD: -0.71%) and equity risk higher (VIX US: +8.09%), while renewed geopolitical tensions caused gyrations in commodity prices at the same time. More mute (tech) earnings pressured sentiment in the tech benchmarks further. In the U.S., e.g., the IPOX® 100 U.S. (ETF: FPX), benchmark for U.S. IPOs and Spin-offs, slumped -5.01% to +0.00% YTD, +35 bps. less than when compared to U.S. technology stocks tracked in the Nasdaq 100 (NDX), however, lagging the S&P 500 (SPX), benchmark for U.S. stocks. Big weakness extended to exposure linked to non-U.S. domiciled stocks, including Europe, Nordic, China and Asia-Pacific with portfolios receding some of this year's benchmark-adjusted outperformance as investors pared positions ahead of earnings on a spike in risk. The IPOX® MENA (IPEV) bucked the trend, adding +0.75% to +8.20% YTD last week on a big week for heavyweight Saudi utility services provider with global ambitions ACWA Power (ACWA AB: +20.00%).

Amid more rumored corporate actions amongst IPOX® Holdings, including Salesforce (CRM US: -8.14%) target Informatica (INFA US: -8.55%) and Schneider (SU FP: -0.48%) target Bentley Systems (BSY US: +8.91%), acquirers of IPOX® Holdings tracked in GINDEX® (GNDX, GNDXI) traded in line with the benchmarks. //

Powering ahead: ACWA Power (ACWA AB) sets fresh post-IPO High:

IPOX® PORTFOLIO HOLDINGS IN FOCUS: In the U.S., more than 80% of portfolio holdings in the IPOX® 100 U.S. (ETF: FPX) fell for a 2nd week, with the average (median) stock recoding a decline of -4.69% (-4.64%), outperforming the applied market-cap weighted index. Aforementioned PA-based application software maker Bentley Systems (BSY US: +8.91%) ranked as the best performing portfolio holding, followed by industrial Janus International (JBI US: +7.45%) and Financials Jackson Financial (FXN US: +2.87%) and Ryan Specialty (RYAN US: +2.54%). Amid big weakness amongst small- and mid-cap biotechs, communications equipment maker Credo Technology (CRDO US: -21.08%) ranked at the bottom of the weekly performance rankings. //

In non-U.S. domiciled exposure, the story of the week belonged to the big slump in U.S. traded U.K.-domiciled chip designer ARM Holdings (ARM US: -30.98%). Amid a number of downgrades, perceived insider selling and huge trading volume, the stock slumped into the weekend amid worsening sentiment for chipmakers after disappointing results from bellwether Dutch-based ASML Holdings (ASML NA: -10.64%) further weakened momentum. Disappointing earnings also pressured London-based fintech Wise (WISE LN: -14.59%) and Swedens key private equity player EQT (EQT SS: -10.78%). In the IPOX® International (ETF: FPXI), we note another good week for Indonesian alternative energy provider Barito Renewables (BREN IJ: +17.33%) which closed the trading week at an all-time High. The portfolio also saw more gains for Swiss drug maker spin-off Sandoz (SDZ SW: +9.66%), while upgrades propelled the positive momentum for Korean online marketplace Coupang (CPNG US: +3.58%). //

UPCOMING EARNINGS: 13.77% (by weight) of IPOX® 100 U.S. (ETF: FPX) portfolio stocks are set to report earnings this week, including Crane (CR US: Monday After-hours), Veralto (VLT US: Tuesday, After-hours), Mr. Cooper (COOP US: Wednesday, Pre-Market), Otis (OTIS US: Wednesday, Pre-Market), Vertiv (VRT US: Wednesday, Pre-Market), Carrier (CARR US: Thursday Pre-market), Mobilye (MBLY US: Thursday Pre-Market) and Phillips Edison (PECO US: Thursday After Hours). //
